To be a designing editor...

Expansion of the journalism class and a contribution from the Highline District for the publication of the Rams' Horn inspired the young reporters to a higher quality paper. Cub reporter of the previous year, Dwight Perry, was chosen editor.

Color pages and a larger sports section were new additions to TOR. Meeting early deadlines allowed for a sixteen-page free supplement.

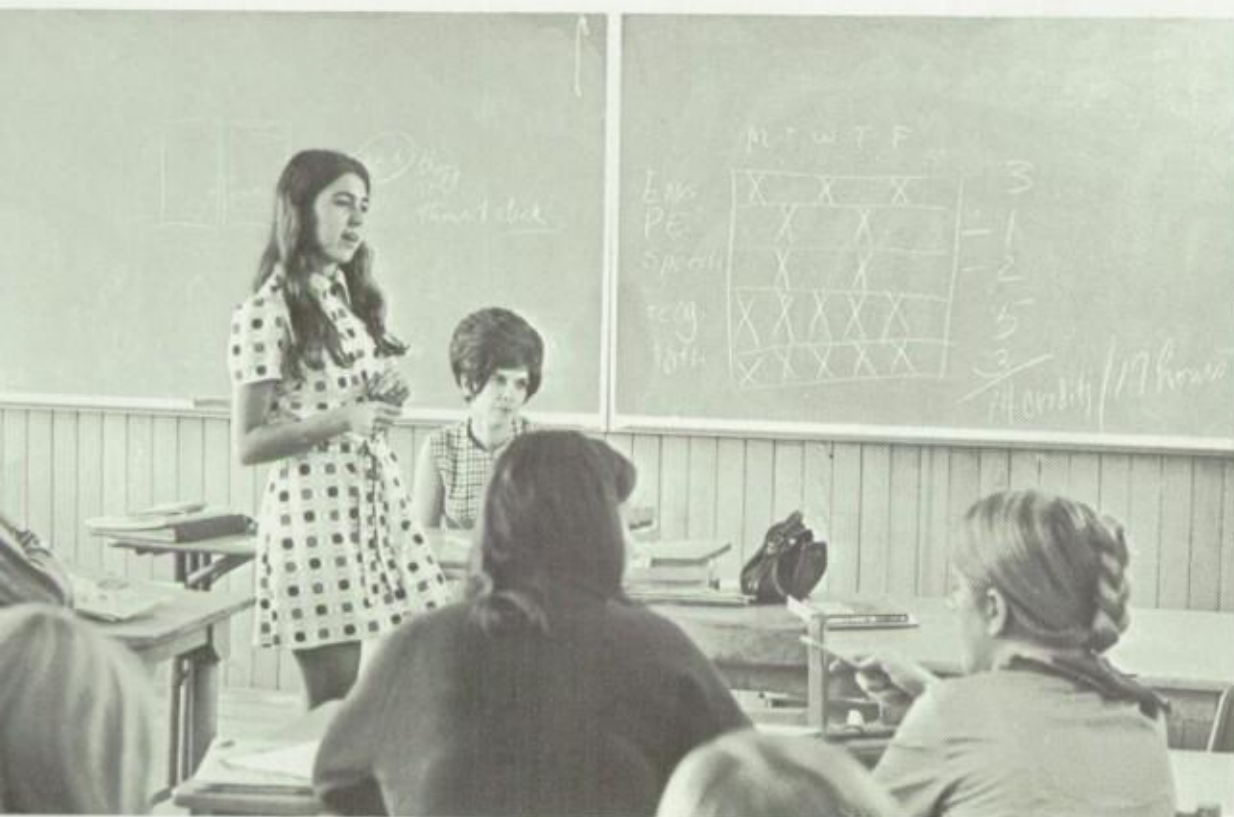

Although annual names are usually taken from an Indian word, it was debated whether TOR meant Top of Rainier or if it was a German word meaning "rocky crag."

Audio-visual comes into focus

Designed as a service project, the audio-visual program made a resounding debut in the classrooms of Ram Country. Using Room 209 as a dispatch center, tape recorders, record players, and other forms of A-V equipment were distributed under the watchful eye of advisor, Doug Ringenbach.

Twenty-eight projectionists manned the fort in the first year of operation and the fact that only half of the corps were seniors laid a firm foundation for an improved program in the future.

The library, operating without the load of projection equipment, turned its attention toward a smooth-operating staff and the new microfilm machine, which proved to be a valuable educational aid. Mr. Dennis Bernard, head librarian, logged his thirteenth year of service in the Mt. Rainier library and, with the help of his assistant, Mrs. Ann Mount, made the room welcome to students in pursuit of research information.

Seeing oneself

Learning about oneself was one of the many issues involving students enrolled in Family Relations. To make it all the more interesting, the class was co-ed. This added depth to the discussions about abortion and relationships with the opposite sex.

Boys advanced from a relatively easy project such as sewing an apron to more complex chores such as baking quick and yeast breads.

Shirley Venden was the new Modern Living teacher. She previously taught at Tyee. Teaching the students how to plan families and to keep within a budget were a few things taught in this class. Students also spent a few weeks on the care of invalids.

Students test their own strength

Taking advantage of their own knowledge of individual strengths and weaknesses, students enrolled for the first time in quarter and semester English classes.

Christianity, Confucianism, Hinduism, and other major religions were introduced for the first time in Religions of Man, a semester course. Quarter classes included Listening and Learning, Advanced and Basic Grammar, Mechanics of Vocabulary and Spelling. New techniques such as a t.v. quiz game fashioned after the Who-What-Where game were used as a test review:

History makes daily headlines

A sophomore entering Mr. Rainier's History Department was first confronted with the World History program. There he learned the ages from Mesopotamia to present day. As a junior the pupil progressed to U.S. History, and in the senior year to Contemporary Problems which was provided as an elective. Also included was a Washington History course for those not able to take it on the freshman level.

No time lost due to injuries

Either working together like a close knit family, or alone in their own field of work, the industrial arts students turned out many useful projects throughout the year.

After conquering the ability to work with tablesaws, jointers, valve grinders, T-squares, and voltmeters, the students began their projects with stunning success and disappointing failure.

With the valuable knowledge and priceless experience gained by the students, they were ready to face the world with their new-born and indispensable talents.

Law students appear before the Bar

Grand larceny, shoplifting, and drunken driving were only a few of the cases viewed by Mr. Bill Hill's business law students when they visited Tacoma Municipal and King County Superior Courts.

These field trips were designed to give his classes a chance to see practical applications of the laws they had studied in the classroom. Factual case studies further helped this group of "young lawyers" to understand the essential elements of a binding contract, and the importance of legal precedent in a lawsuit.

“Hands on” exposure livens up class

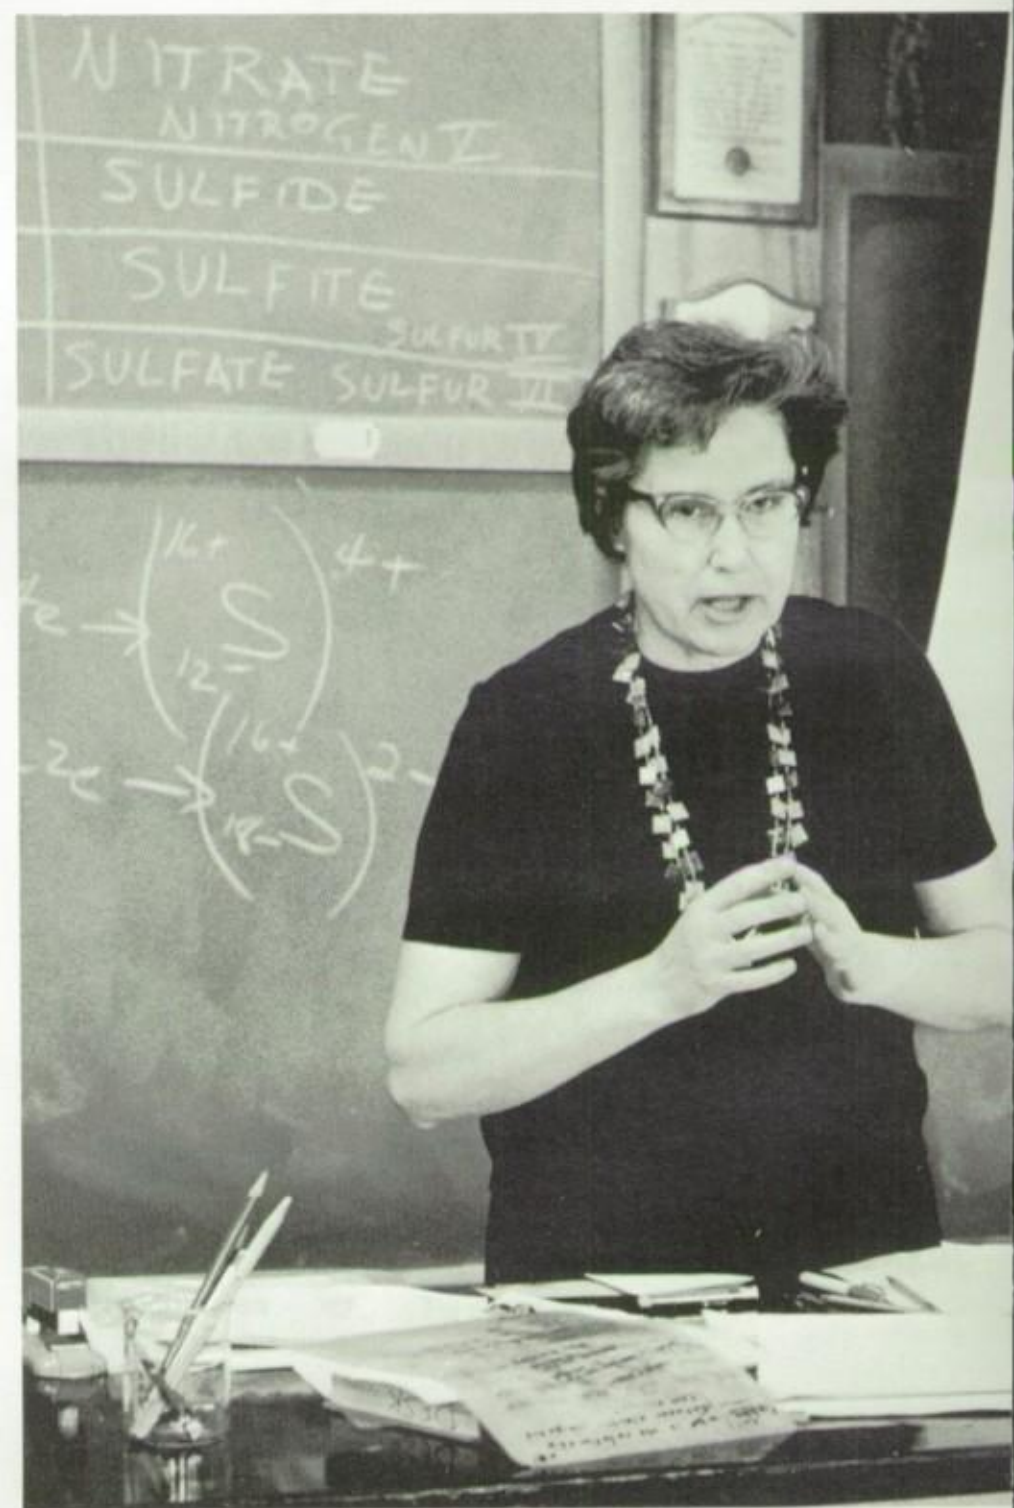

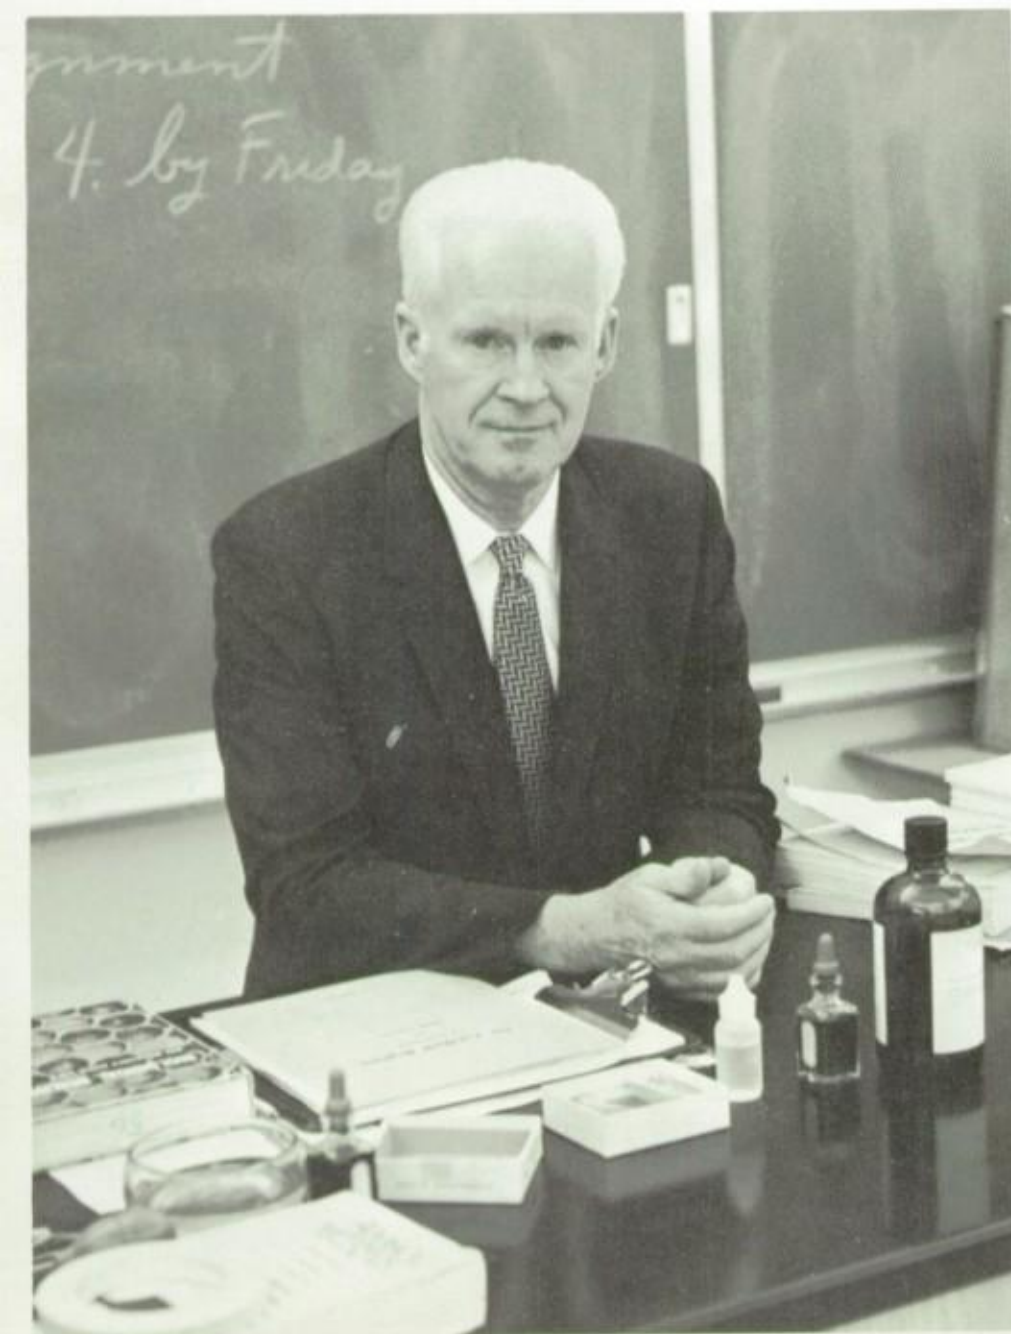

Giving students a “hands on,” exposure to create an understanding of how a computer worked was one of the goals of the new computer class. The new class, under the leadership of Miss Kathy White, gained practical experience by working with a small table-top computer in the classroom and by using a larger computer in the district office.

Mt. Rainier was also able to broaden and improve the math department by adding a calculus class taught by Mr. Dave Price and the addition of a new teacher, Mrs. Susan Monroe, who taught geometry and consumer math.

Dedicated teachers "stick it out"

In analyzing the characteristic properties of the science department, one very unique element was found. Three teachers had lectured, demonstrated, and supervised the scientific endeavors of Mt. Rainier for more than ten years. Miss Marian Berdan, Mr. Walter Raney, and Mr. Kenneth Kimmel took this top honor.

Zoology changed from a one year course to a one semester course. It no longer satisfies the one year lab science that is required for graduation. The two-hour math-science block was also dropped from the curriculum. Students who were interested in the areas of science and mathematics took their courses separately.

Talented hands with creative minds

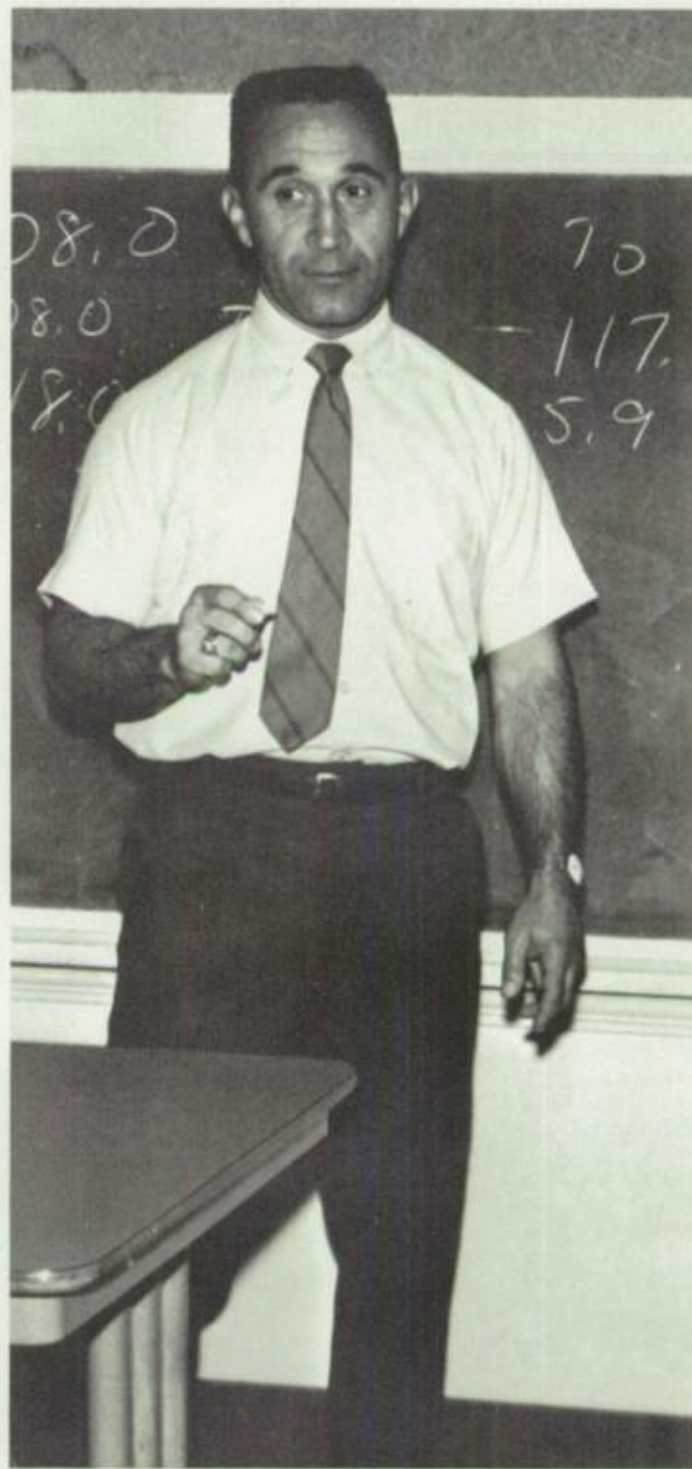

Block-printed paper towel dispensers and flowered cupboards set creative mood for young artists in Mr. Ernie Wanzer's art and commercial art classes. Designing a cover for the Student Directory was one of the many services provided by the Art Department.

Aviation and photography classes taught by Mr. Eugene Sartore added to the variety of elective courses. Photography assignments included taking pictures of bridges, cemeteries, animals, and driftwood. Aviation class prepared the student to take the Private Pilot's License Test.

Aquariums with octopi and a swimming pool full of live fish were all an important part of the Marine Technology program in Ocupational Skills Center. For the first time the program had a radar set-up donated by Radar Electric. The study of waves in a newly constructed 16-foot tank was one of their many course studies. Commercial Clothing, Institutional Foods, Medical Assistant and Pre-technician Plastics were also offered in O.S.C.

Distributive Education was a vocational course and a member of Distributive Education Clubs of America. It gave experience in retailing, and wholesaling. Students learned the aspects of dealing with people, selling, and business communications. They sponsored the Annual Senior Breakfast, pumpkin carving contest, ski swap, ski trip, and Operation Christmas. Playing Santa Claus, sponsoring dances and having lightshows all helped to develop and explore the students aptitudes and occupational objectives.

"Go you chicken fat go"

"Go you chicken fat go... (1,2,3,4) everybody up and ready." Following the theory that rhythm and muscular co-ordination go hand in hand, girls did exercises accompanied by such old favorites as "Hang on Sloopy." The boys not having quite as exciting routine as the girls, were prompted by the three aggressive P.E. teachers.

After warming up with individual routines, the classes were taught skills in the major sport areas to develop stamina and strength for the boys and co-ordination and grace for the girls.

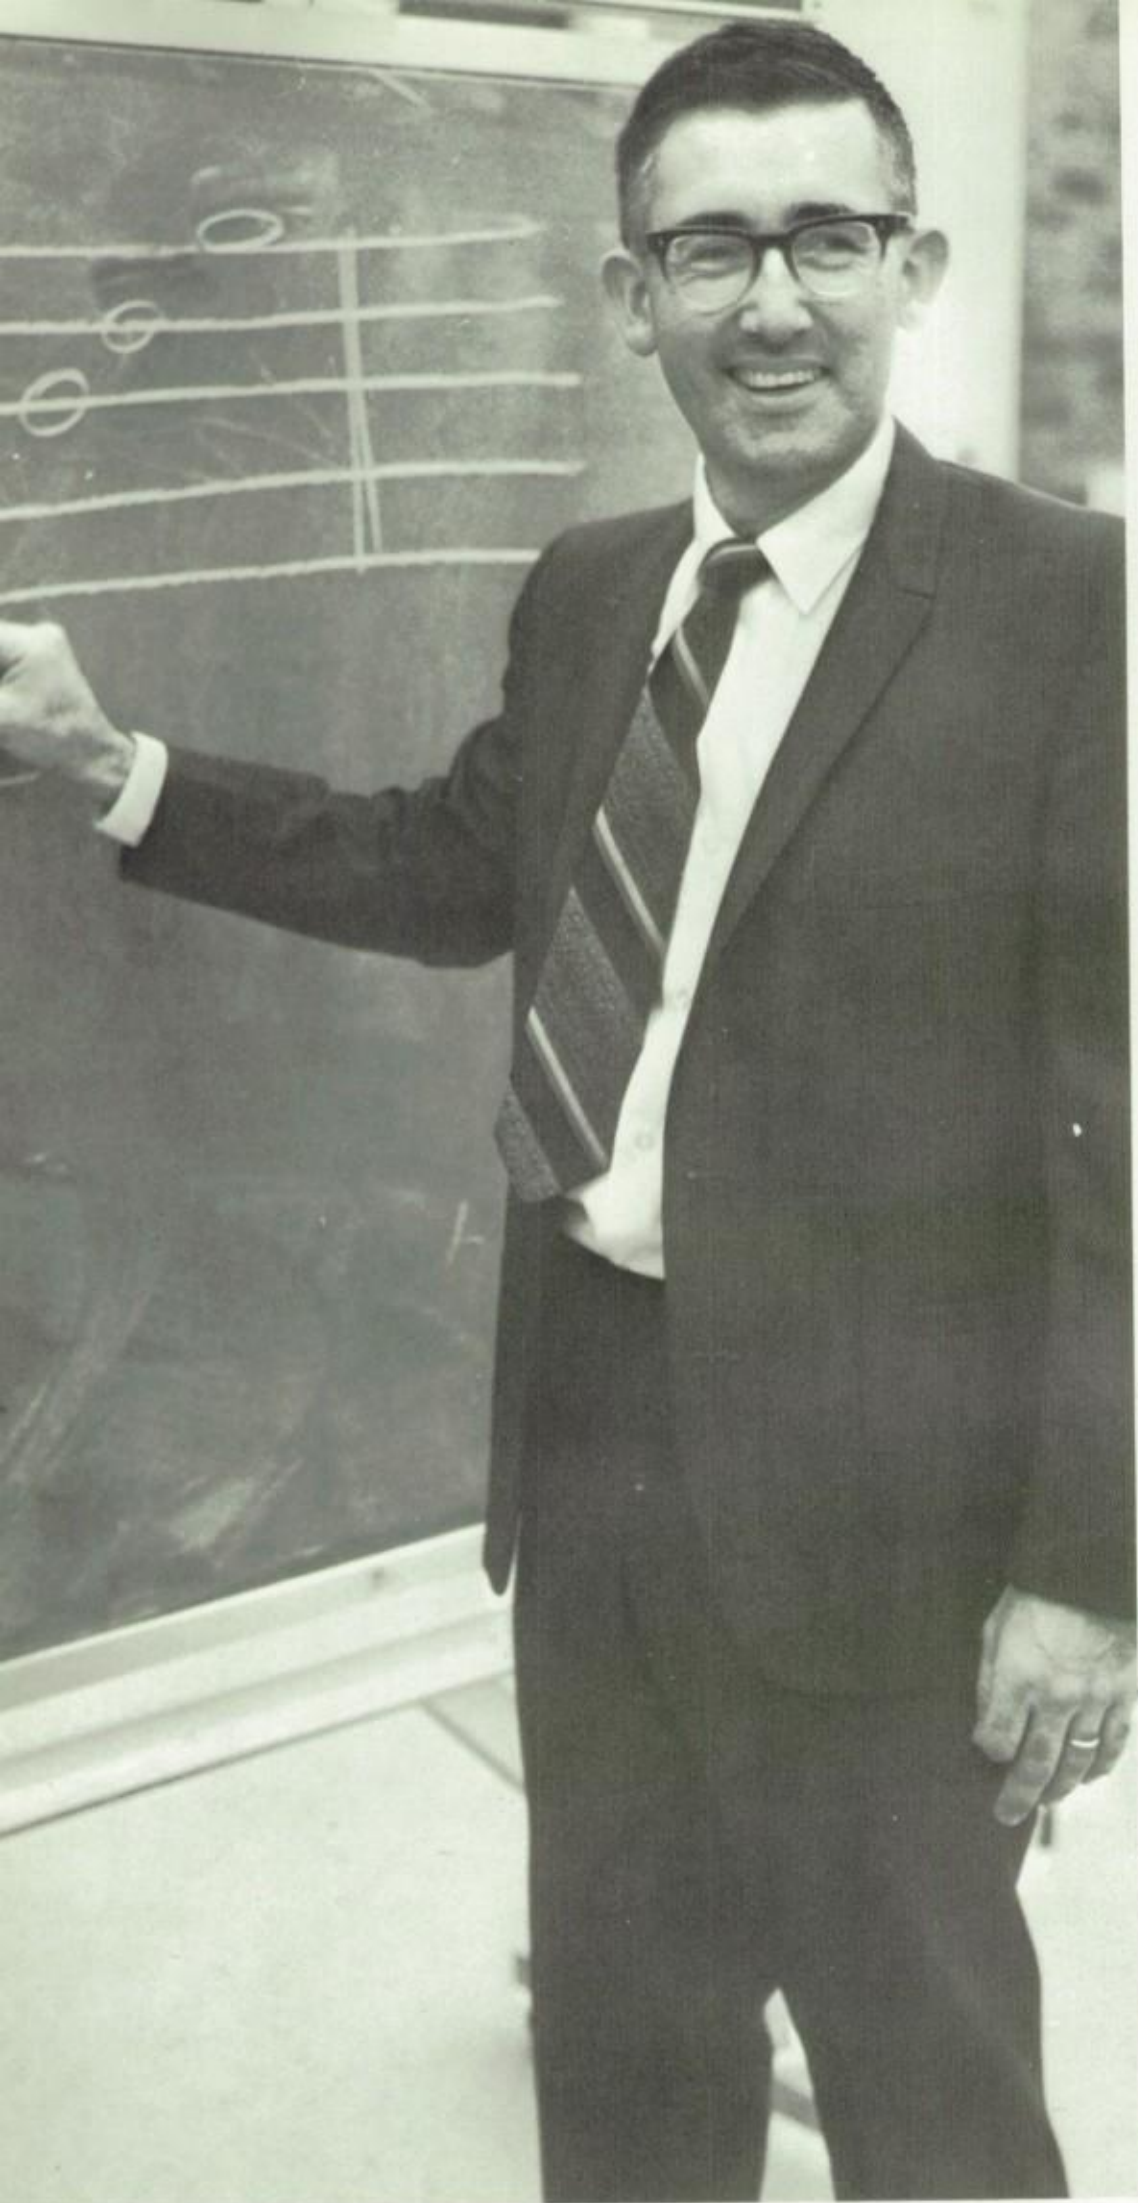

In the junior health classes, drugs, legal abortions and other health topics were discussed.

Sound, soul and spirit

Under the direction of Mr. Mark Van Gasken, Mt. Rainier turned out one of the finest bands in the Highline School District. It was from the Concert Band that Mr. A. Christopher Gonvers drew top winds to complete his twenty-three member string orchestra.

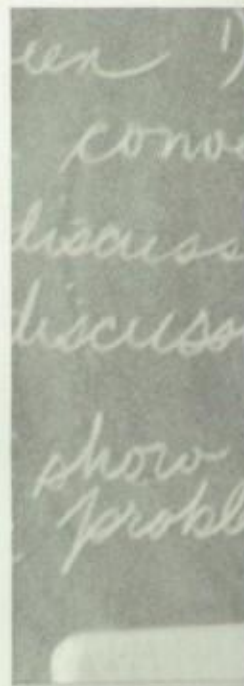

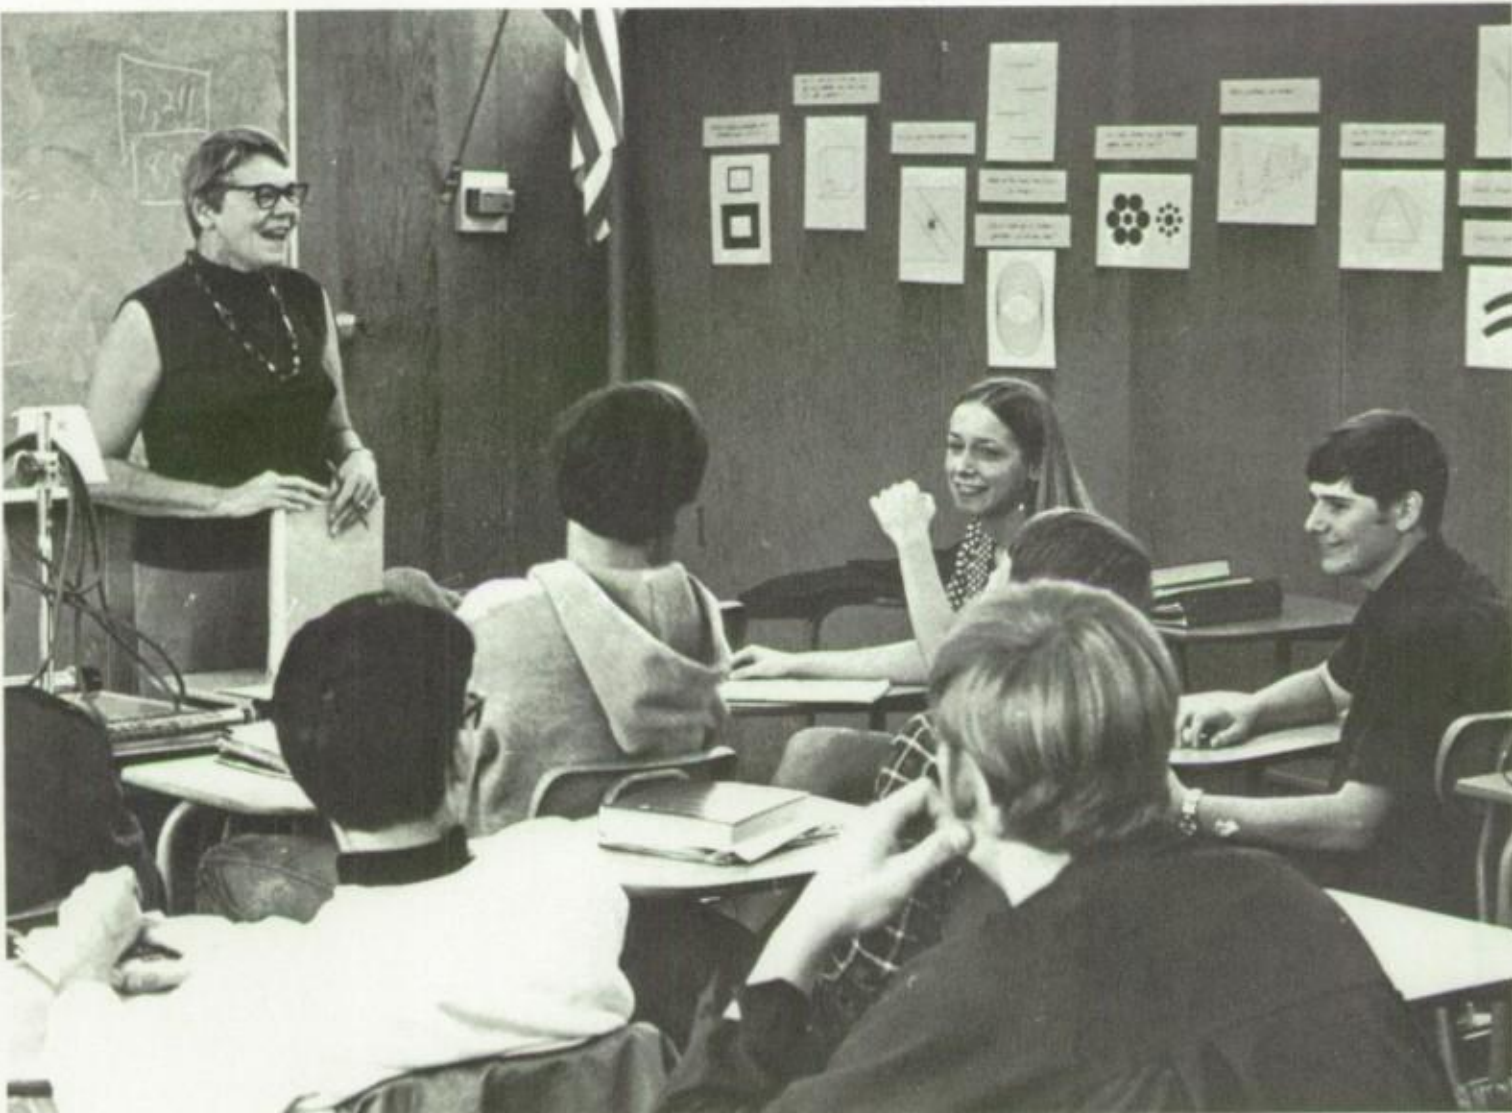

With Mr. Bob Brown's soul and the choir's enthusiastic spirit, our "turned on" singers rated highly among the choirs of the other schools in the district.

Histrionic art launched successfully

Beginners in Drama 1-2 started with pantomimes and improvisations and progressed to acting in scenes from assorted plays. The students also learned of the original dramatic productions performed in Greece.

As strange as it sounds, the classes took part in a food-tasting session. Mr. Michael Fuller used this technique and related it to the reactions of perceptive senses. Food samples consisted of sardines soaked in tobasco sauce, watermelon, and peanut butter.

Breaking character was an automatic offense for beginning speech students. Also stressed were poise, clarity and originality. After acquiring such skills, the students employed them in reading rhymes.

Movies, papers augment 'inteligente'

Inteligente correo de Español (The Spanish Post Intelligencer) and an 8mm movie with soundtrack were projects undertaken by Mr. Barr's advanced Spanish classes. It was anticipated that these projects would increase the students' appreciation of the Spanish culture.

Advanced Russian classes were made possible for the first time to seven people in second year and two people in third year, who had successfully completed a beginners' course. Mrs. Lazzerini expressed hopes for a Russian club to help create further spirit, and a feeling of unity from the students.

Office staff labors diligently

Limited budgets eliminated teacher aides who had operated various duplicating machines, so office assistants adopted this job. The problems of 1690 students kept the assistants hopping so they had little time for training, except on the job. The assistants in the main office were expected to answer phones and to greet newcomers at the desk.

Attendance office assistants were responsible to all the students in what they had to keep their absences straight, record tardies and write admit slips. In the counseling office, the assistants duties included making coffee and sharpening pencils. All assistants were graded as to their attitudes, graciousness, and willingness to serve the student body.

Registration approved

Sample surveys of the student body showed 84 percent liked the new system of scheduling. Students of Mt. Rainier made out schedules in the gym, where lines formed 2 to 3 hours prior to registration time. Advantages in this were: both students and teachers were ready at least a week earlier than other years and, fewer schedule changes were requested or necessary.

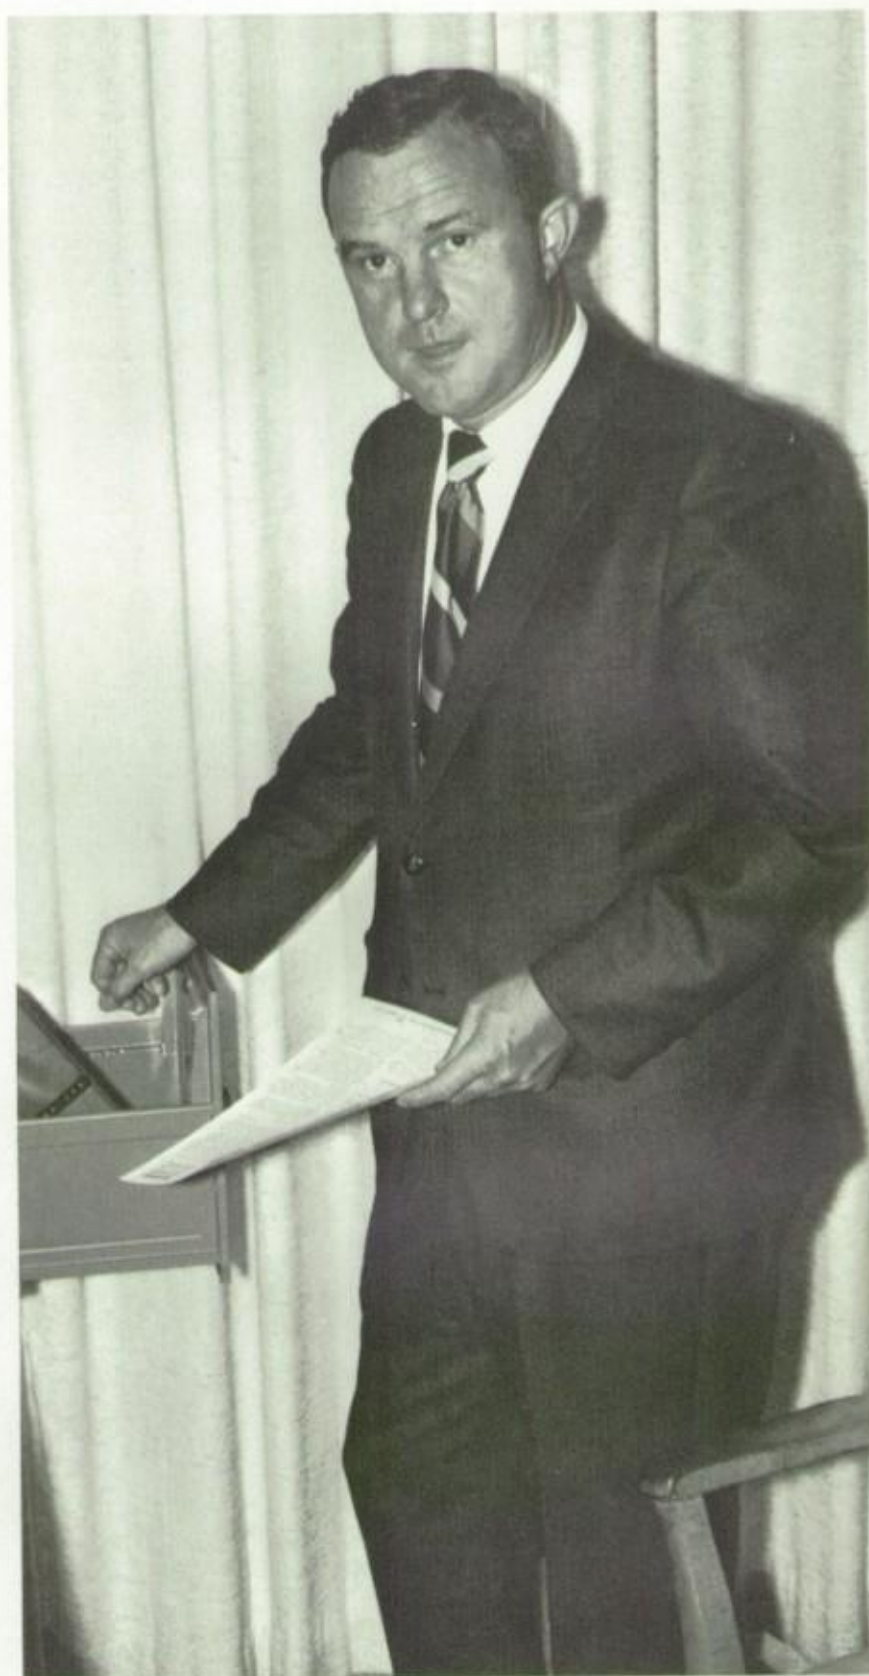

Counseling is primarily a guidance service. Counseling is a student-counselor relationship in which a student is encouraged to seek information and examine alternate courses before acting. Counseling seeks to help students assume responsibility for making decisions.

Staff lightens darkest day

Personalities of the fearsome foursome seemed to lighten even the darkest day. Heading the foursome was the principal, Donald Hedwall.

For the first full year, Mt. Rainier had two vice-principals, Mr. Neil McKay and Mr. Fred Minahan. Minahan supervised and made the floor design for the first college-type registration; he was in control of student discipline, campus patrol, early dismissals, and the student lounge. McKay was in charge of data processing, intramurals, teachers and master schedules.

With the advent of a crowded situation, Robert Whetsell, assistant to the principal, transferred his office closer to the students.

The Associated Student Body officers worked in uniting the classes. They succeeded in creating a feeling of student unity and participation. The student council meetings gave an opportunity for students to express their views and opinions and also to give the students the chance of leadership. Under Bill Schneebeli's guidance there was reorganization, constructive criticism and active discussion.

They promoted activities such as the Franklin Exchange, a skate-in, and a blood drive. New charters were given to the Russian and Photo Club, SAC and Indian Club.

"No ice cream? No indoor toilets? What do you do then?" These are just a few of the questions presented to the Foreign Exchange Students that attended Mt. Rainier on Foreign Exchange Day. These students visited different classes told about their countries and answered any questions the students had. Emil Mezgolits from Austria and Sabin Weigler from Germany were two foreigners enrolled at Mt. Rainier.

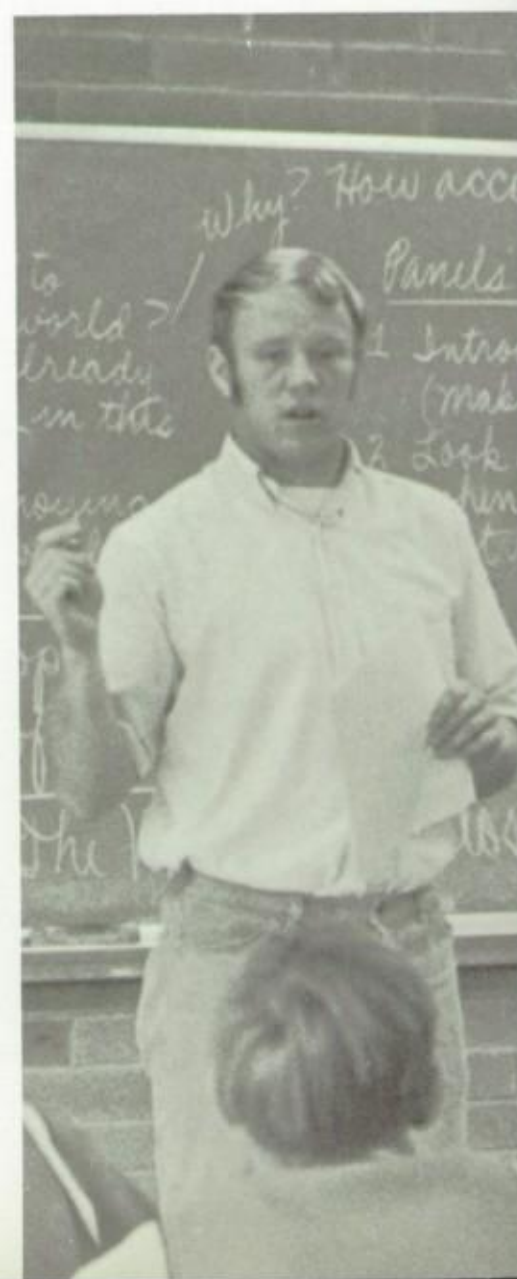

Besides receiving students, MR also sent students to other countries. "Americans Abroad" was one such program. Kim Cochran was sent to Chile on the summer program and Lynn Hilsen was selected for the year in Brazil.

"People to People" was a summer travel program open to sophomores, juniors, and seniors. The following students went on a tour of Europe: Jean Bolender, Barb Silverman, Leslie Wold, Kathy Salzer, Kris Rollefson, Cindy Gayman, Steve Delehoy, John Scheide, Kurt Asplund, and Bill Forlund. Having fun as well as benefitting the school, Lettermen's Club and Boys' Club kept the Rams' spirit alive. Boys' Club contributed a trophy case to hold some of the fine championship trophies. They also sold Ram candy and sno-cones on game days and took part in taking care of Ajax.

Lettermen's Club had an annual calendar sale along with sponsoring the always-fun donkey basketball game. The club, consisting of all varsity letter winners, rounded out the year in going to the U of W Varsity Alumni Football game.

The best things come in big packages!

Mt. Rainier produced the only orchestra in the Highline District. Strings and bows tied their packaged Spring Concert together.

The choir was asked to sing for KISW radio station. The half-hour program aired Christmas Eve. Mr. Brown's mod look rubbed off on male proteges in the Ensemble when they made their own paisley vests.

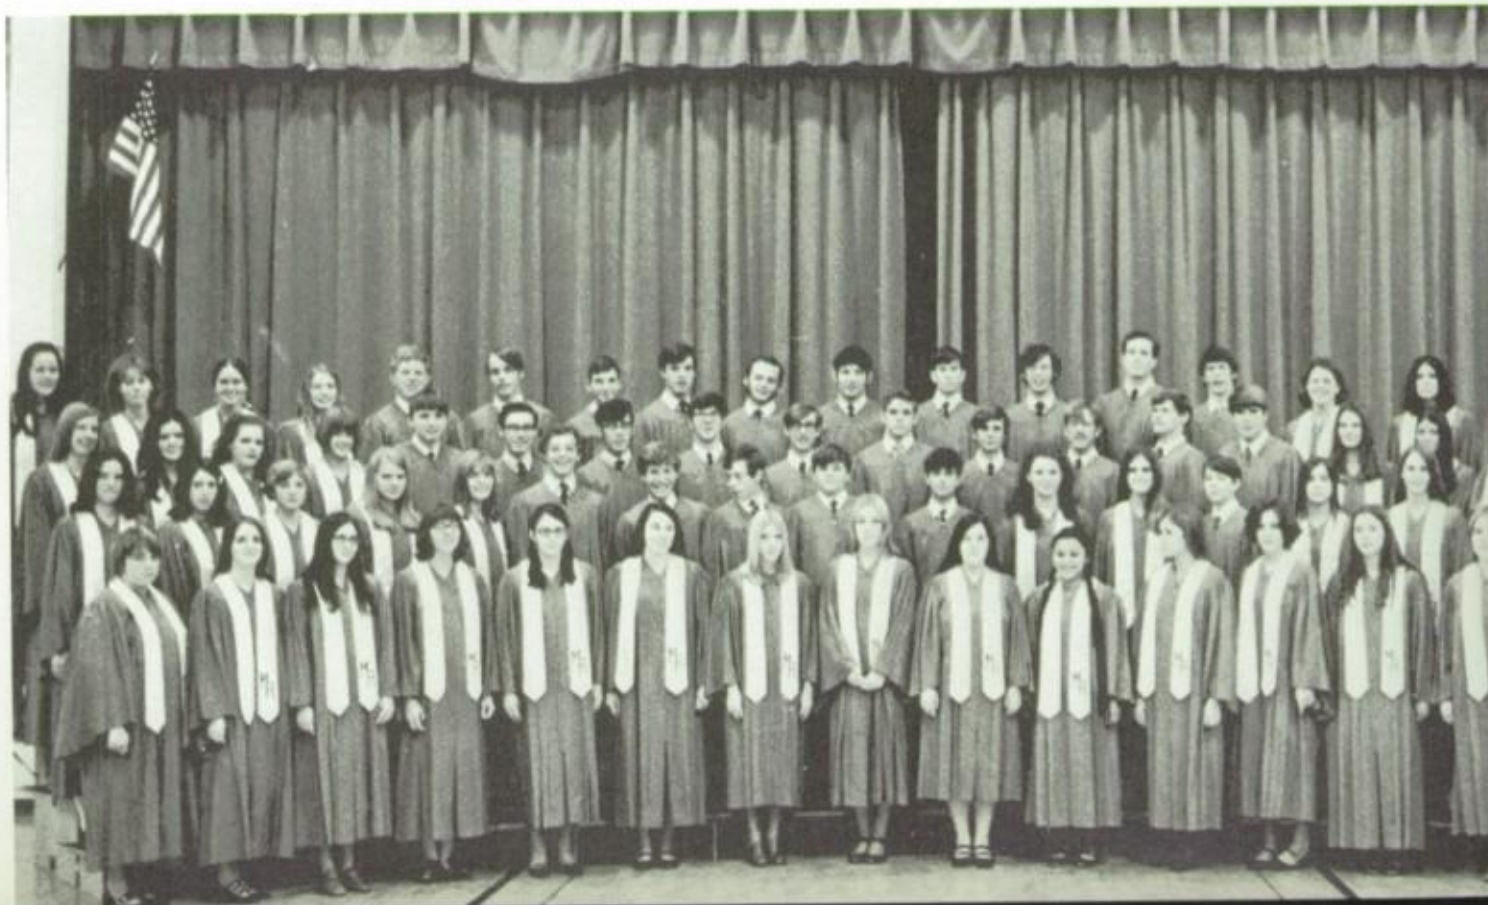

Early morning practices prepared the Drill Team for the Daffodil Parade. They performed at school games and entered several contests.

Arising as early as 3 a.m., Pep members stepped out into the world to add their personal touch of toilet paper and signs to the golf, cross country and many other team members' homes.

Pep Club Executive Board, under the leadership of Officers Michale Yockey, Bev Davis, Nancy O'Brien and Roxy Jobs, was composed of the heads of the decorations, novelties, and food committees.

A 3.3 grade average wasn't the only requirement to join Honor Society. Students were also selected on the basis of service and leadership. Honor Society had a slave sale to raise some money for the club.

Taking tickets at the games and plays were just a few of the duties the girls on Service Club performed. These girls, advised by Miss Stallings, were an important part in all the activities that went on at Mt. Rainier.

Girls' Club: the bigger the better

Realizing that they had a chance to involve more girls in their functions, Girls' Club added a representative from Drill Team and Pep Club bringing the council total to forty-three. In the form of a swim party and barbeque, the annual Big and Little Sister Party took place at Steel Lake. Incoming sophomores were welcomed at this function.

Inspired by the Roaring Twenties, the Girls' Club's-sponsored Tolo adopted this theme. Each Cabinet member created her own attire from the 20's. Because Boys' Club declined the honor of selecting boys of the month, the girls took over the task and treated the honorees at Farrell's.

Overcoming several unforeseen situations, Homecoming '70 came through in the end. With special homage being paid to the class of 1965, more graduate faces gleamed among the crowd at the coronation, than in all previous assemblies.

After some long moments of anticipation, Laurie Reynolds was chosen to reign over the Homecoming Activities with Princesses Linda Stevens, Julie Hammett, Shelly Henry, and Laurie Murtha. Concluding this year's Homecoming was the dance held in the cafeteria on Saturday, Oct. 17. "Harbor", the band, was excellent and grads and students enjoyed themselves the 1970 Homecoming.

Weigh those cans! Repair that toy! Sort these clothes! With the assistance of Miss Marian Berdan, Mt. Rainier students were again successful with their annual Operation Christmas. Students were able to provide a touch of happiness to some of this area's less fortunate families during the holiday season. Starting with a canned food drive in October, students strove to reach their goal of providing some thirty families with food, clothes, toys and even a puppy dog if so desired.

Tolo fulfills 20's mood

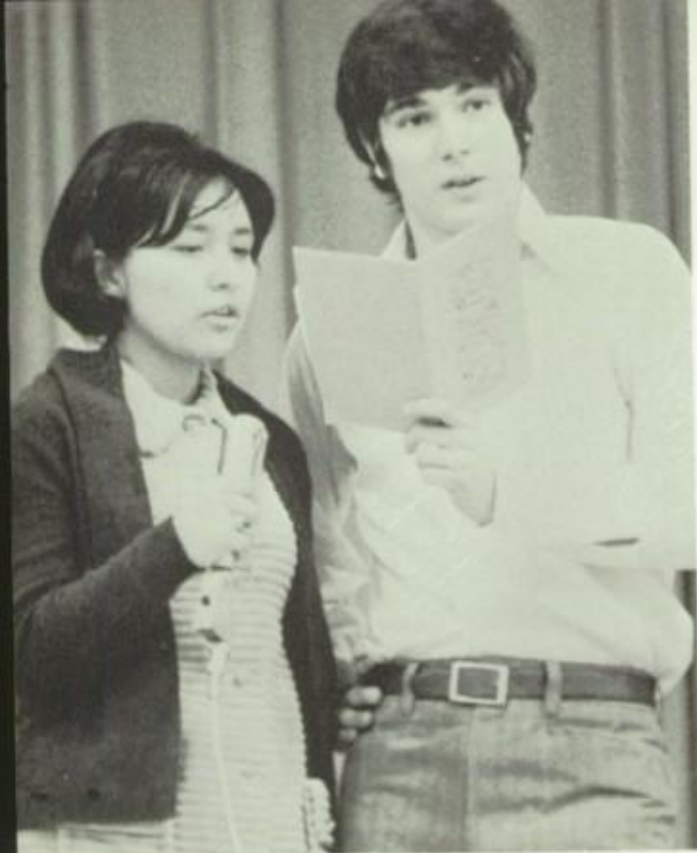

The tolo really roared-with the theme of the Twenty's. The Girls' Club-sponsored dance was brought alive with the band "Pile Driver" which played. Many ASB sponsored clubs had booths. Girls' Club had a successful "speak-easy" on the stage with entertainment consisting of a hold-up and a strip tease by strobe lights. Couples were "married" until midnight by Foreign Exchange Club or thrown into jail by one of the senior class officers. Biggest money-maker was the Jail.

Variety show climaxes visit

As a climax to visits to neighboring schools, the American Field Service foreign exchange students met for participation at the annual A.F.S. assembly held at our school. This was actually the first time these students could be together and be aware of the United States as a group. The Foreign language teachers acted as hosts at the assembly and as counselors throughout the year.

"Barefoot in the Park" tiptoes past

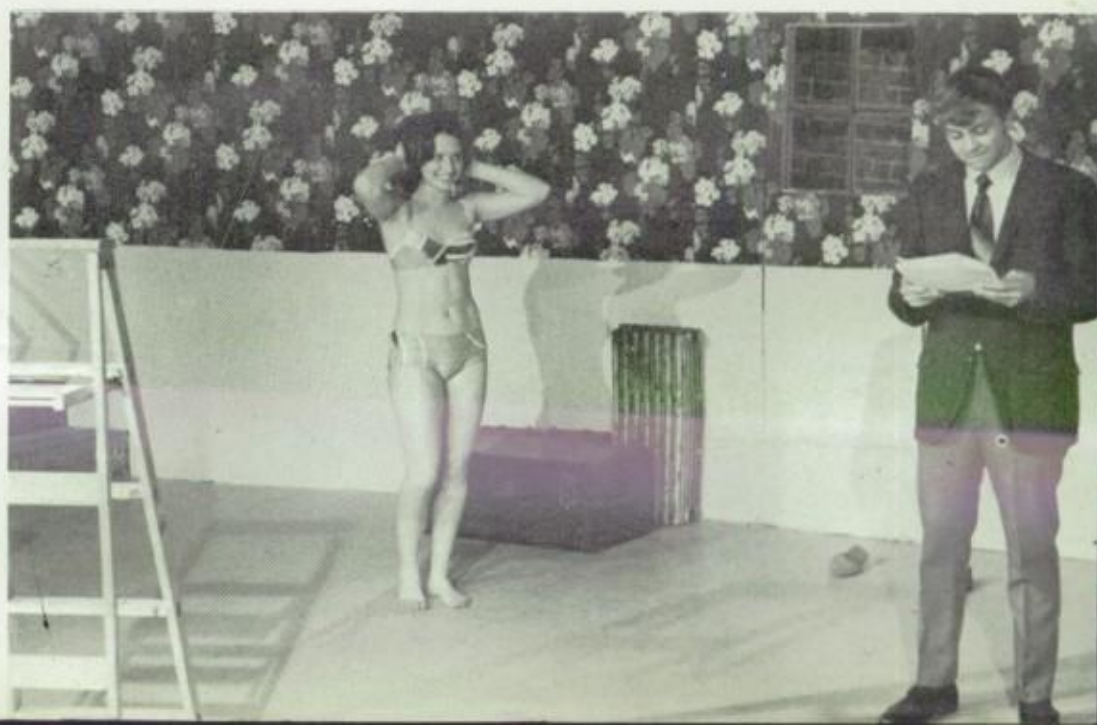

There was no need for posters and articles to advertise the opening of "Barefoot in the Park," the all-school play. After the first performance, the rave reviews were all that was required to keep the attendance at the SRO peak.

The comedy starred Mark Nelson and Gail Smith as a newlywed couple in their first apartment. Interesting situations were created by Julie Hammett, a mother-in-law, Al Dyer, repairman, Emil Mezgolits, the man upstairs, and Casey buck, carrier. Mike Fuller directed the success.

Everything Beautiful

"Everything is beautiful" helped to set everyone at the Junior Senior Prom in a very special mood. The Prom was classified as a formal dance and was held at the Sea-Tac Motor Inn. The colors "pink and wine" as well as the theme and decorations were instituted by Debbie Floyd, junior. The theme contest was a "first of a kind" attempt to elicit student involvement. Debbie won ten dollars for her efforts. Chairman of the Prom was Beth Troftgruben. Plans for coronation were made by Kathy Dunstan.

Ram sports: blood, sweat and tears

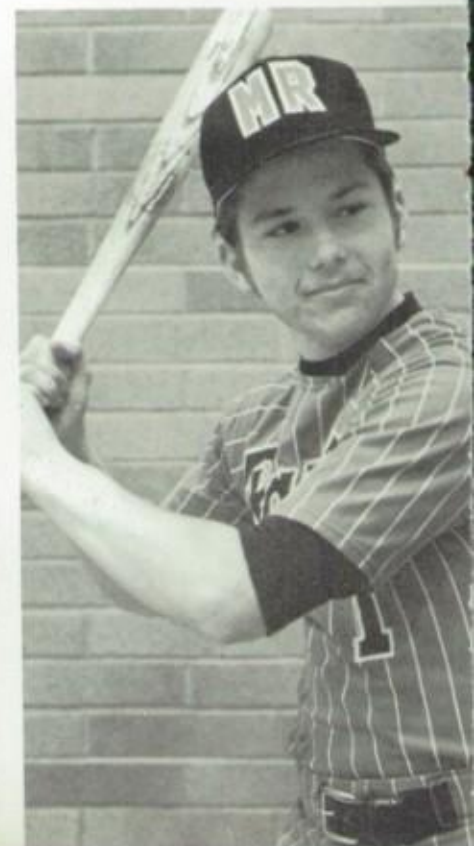

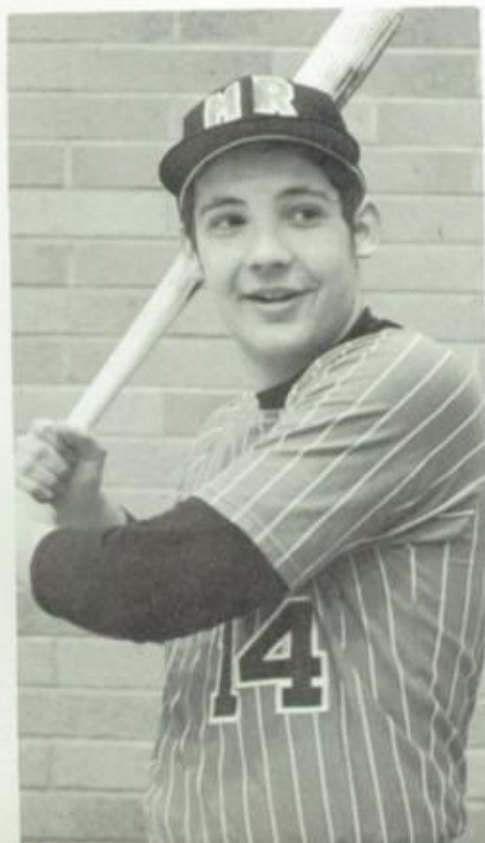

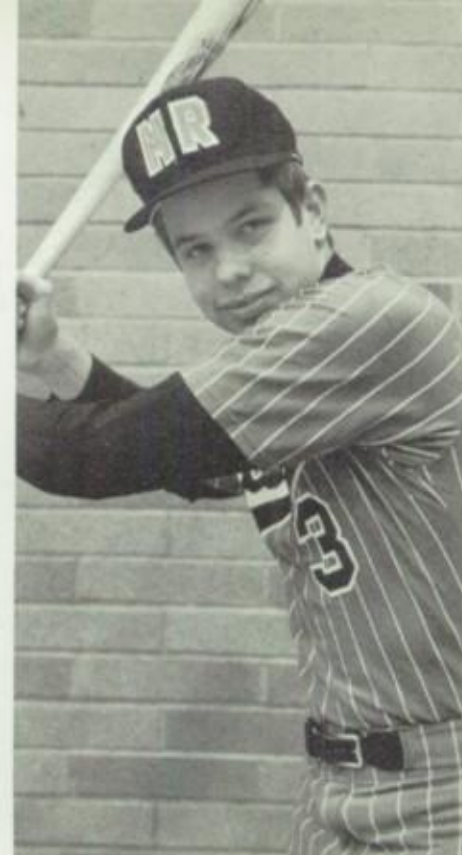

No-hit game maintains Ram baseball dynasty

According to the number of team championships won, spring sports are by far the winningest of all at Mt. Rainier. And, using the same yardstick, baseball is the most successful sport, having won NPSL titles in 1969 and 1970, stocking American Legion and college teams with some of the best talent in the area.

With only two lettermen returning from last year's pennant winner, the outlook was bleak for a third straight title, with a doubleheader loss putting the Rams out of the running right off the bat. Things went from bad to worse when league favorite Tyee reeled off six straight wins to open league play. However, the Rams caught fire, and when they faced the Totems in the final game of the first round, they were only one game off the pace.

Jim Hymas, a transfer from Fort Vancouver, put down the Totems and when Scott Zimmerman threw a no-hitter at Evergreen two days later, the Rams were alone at the top, thanks to the bats of Rob Jones and Gary Rice that carried the Rams in the crucial drive.

Ramtrack roadrunners achieve impossible

Doing the impossible became common news as Mt. Rainier produced the strongest track team in its history. Surprising all the critics Mt. Rainier defeated 28 teams in the Highline Relays. Mt. Rainier placed first, whereas in the past they had never even placed in the top four. Outstanding new additions, provided by the sophomore class were headed by Lee Braach and Mark Caughey.

One bright spot in dismal season

Jan Loveridge and Linda Lavell, the makings of the Rams' girls' doubles team, were a bright spot on an otherwise dismal season for Mt. Rainier tennis.

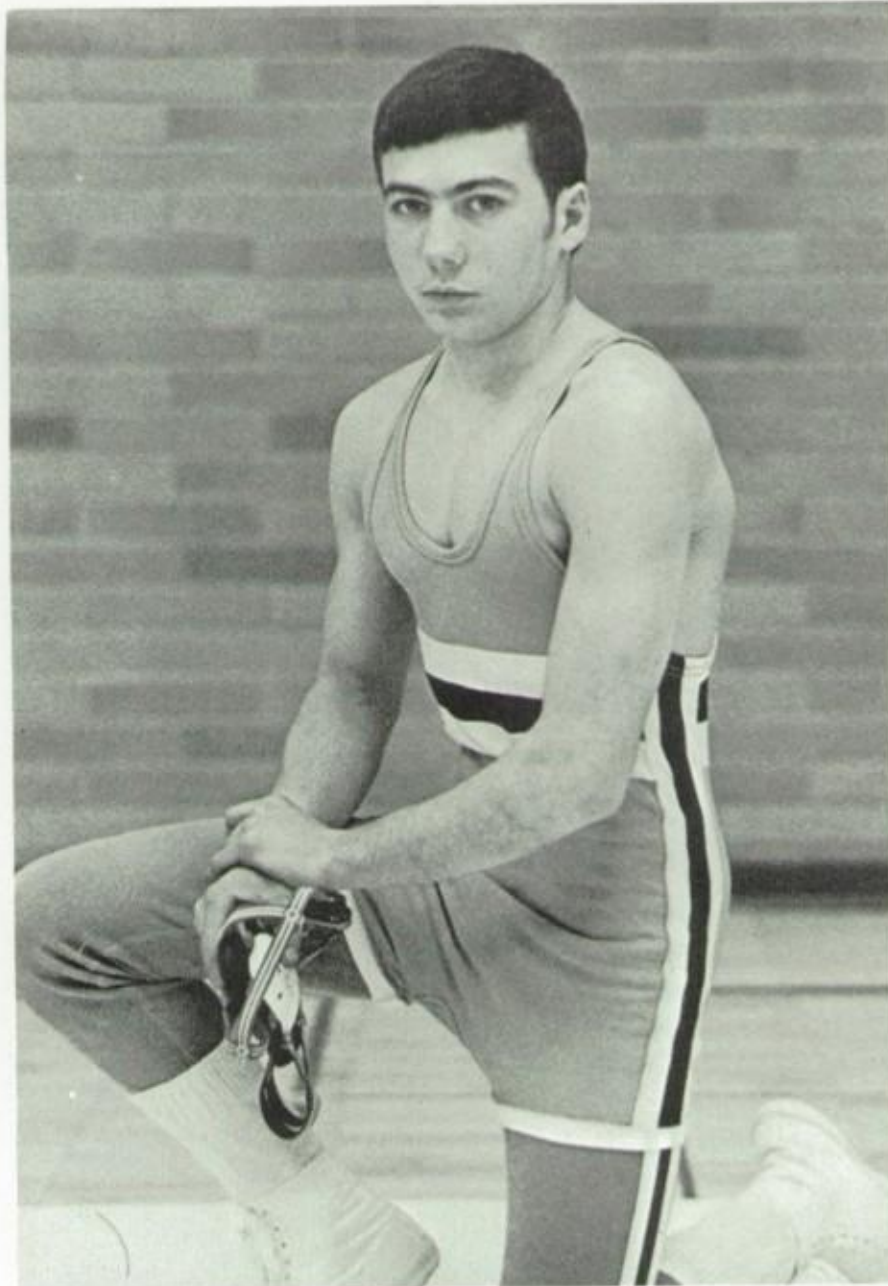

The girls' doubles finished with a 7-1 record, one of the NPSL's top marks, while Coach Command, whose tennis team of 1967 won MR's first title ever, established himself as a dean of the school's coaches, putting in his sixth year at the Rams' helm.

Despite a sub-par win-loss record, the Ram wrestlers enjoyed many high moments during the season. With Rex Bahr, Scott Barclay, Mike Brenneman, and Rich Gross sporting sparkling individual records, the Rams' bid for an upset over the league's top runners was often shattered in the final moments. Although the team as a whole was not in contention for first, Mt. Rainier was still represented well, as Gross and Brenneman each copped individual NPSL titles.

Records fall in Rams' first trip to state

In the greatest moments of Mt. Rainier sport, Coach George Grant's hoopsters made the rounds to the AAA state tournament and, before accepting third place, put on the greatest offensive show in the tourney's 47-year history.

Coming up against Seattle's number two team, Franklin, the Rams made their state debut a good one, as Scott Thompson and Dana Arnold combined for 50 points to lead MR to a 76-64 win. In the Region I finals, Rainier ransacked South Kitsap's fifth-ranked Wolves in the tourney's most lopsided game, 87-47, and won the region title going away.

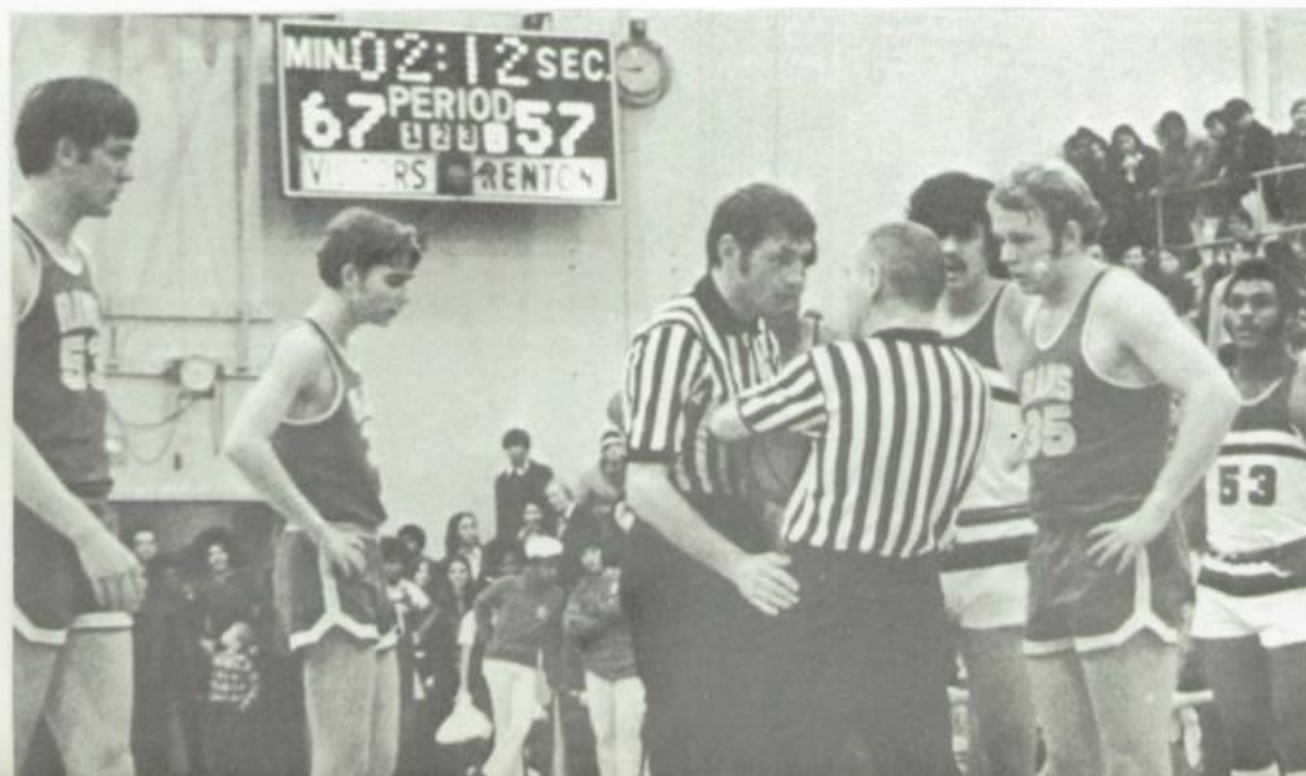

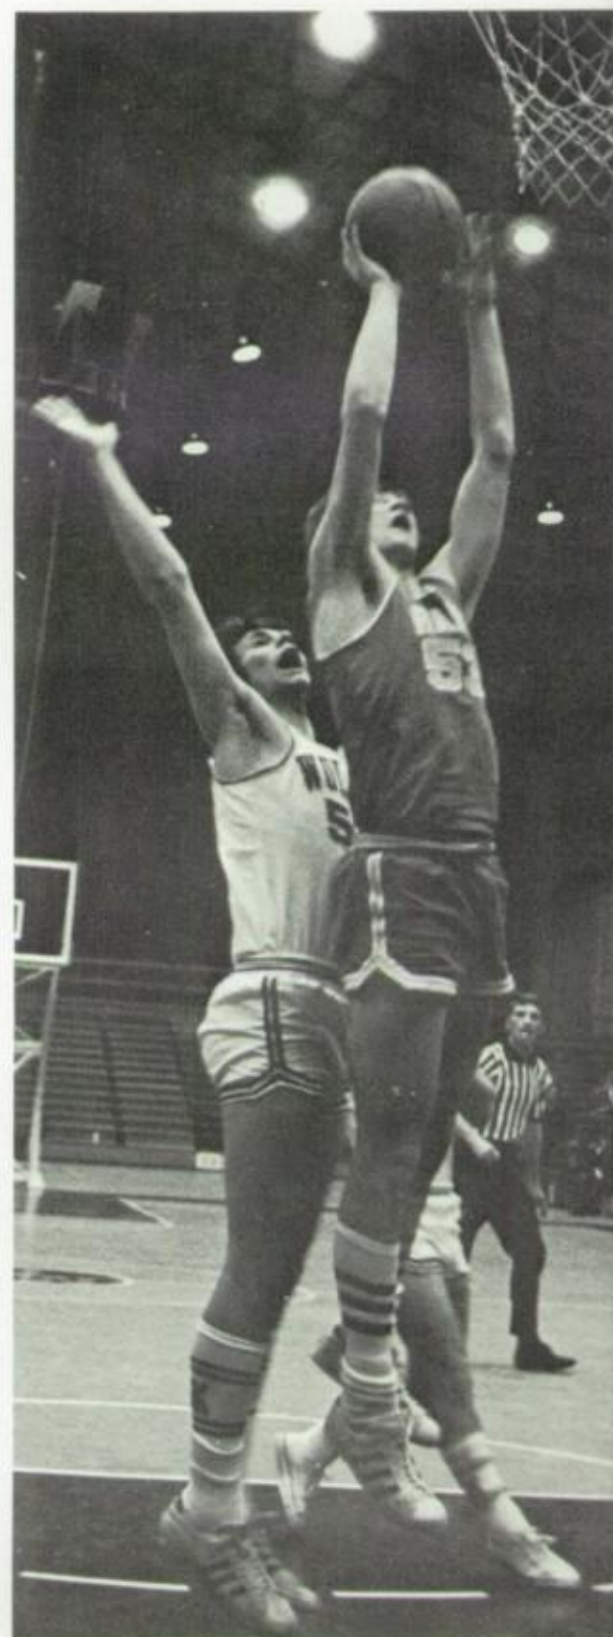

In the state finals, a tenacious Pasco team derailed the Rams' title hopes, but it took a record four overtimes to do it. Accounting for themselves well the next night, MR came back in the ways of a true champion, clobbering the Metro League kingpins, Hale, 94-62.

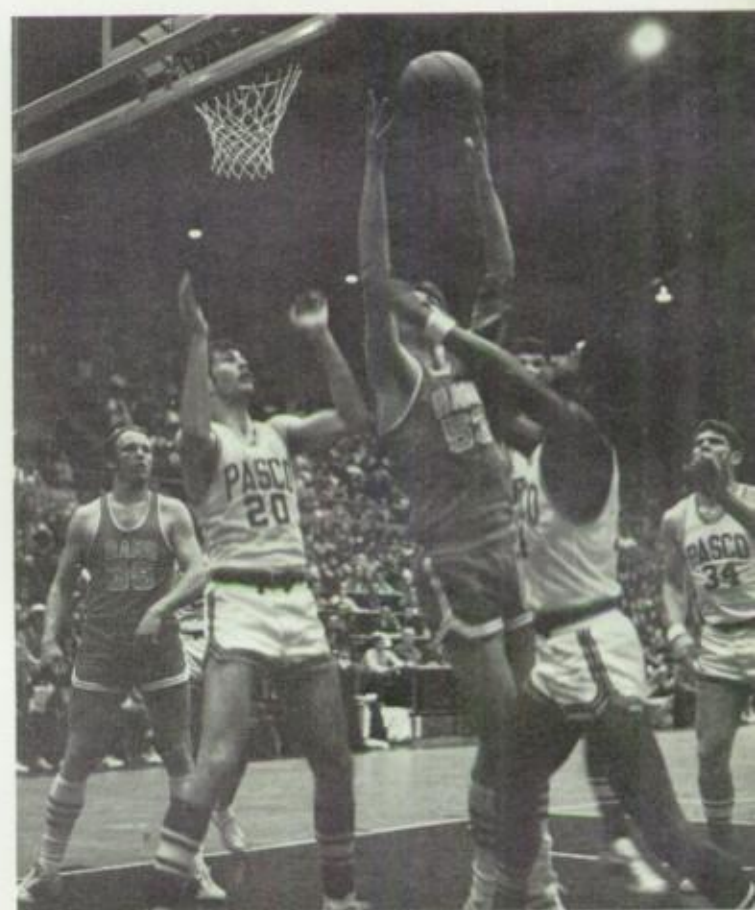

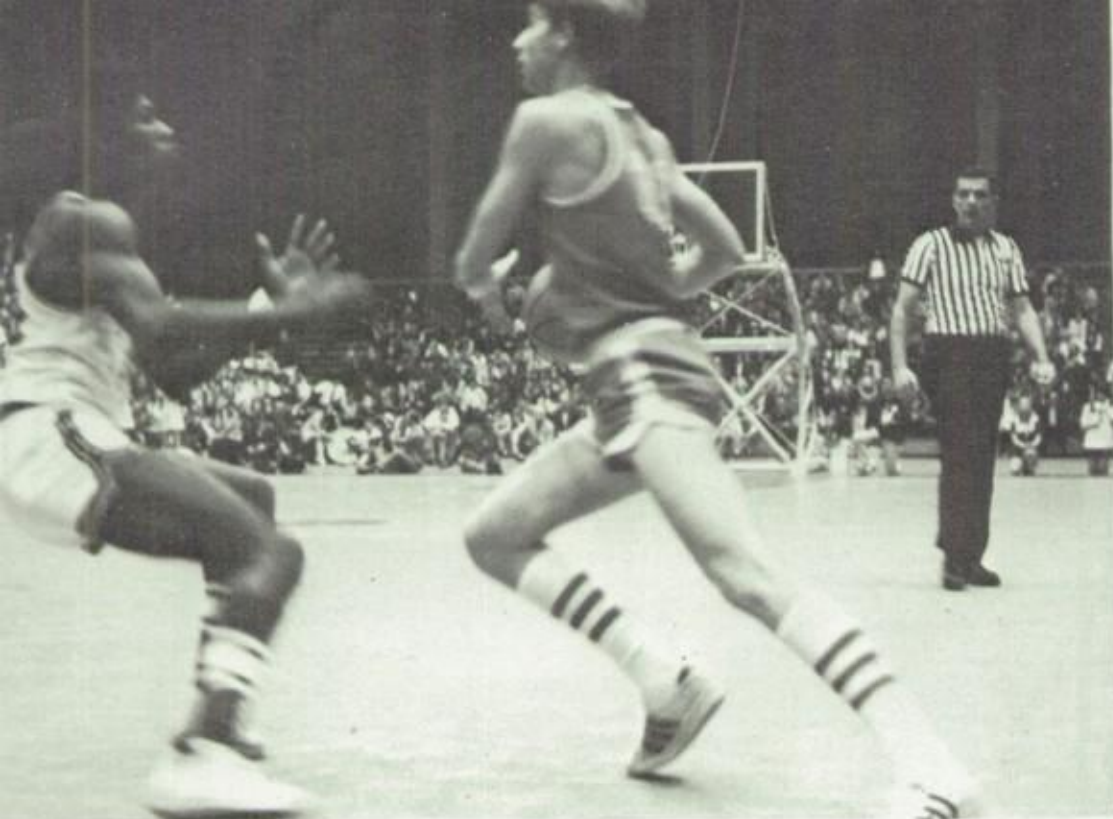

The Rams' 94 points and 39 field goals against the Raiders, along with a whopping 319 points for the tourney, shattered old AAA marks that were considered unbeatable.

“Tank inspirational team” strokes to victory again

With great depth and outstanding individuals, the Mt. Rainier swim team stroked its way to another victorious season. The depth was shown in the fantastic relay teams, both of which qualified for state. Almost a dozen swimmers competed for the privileged relay spots before each meet. The final victory in many meets was decided by the last event, the 400 free relay.

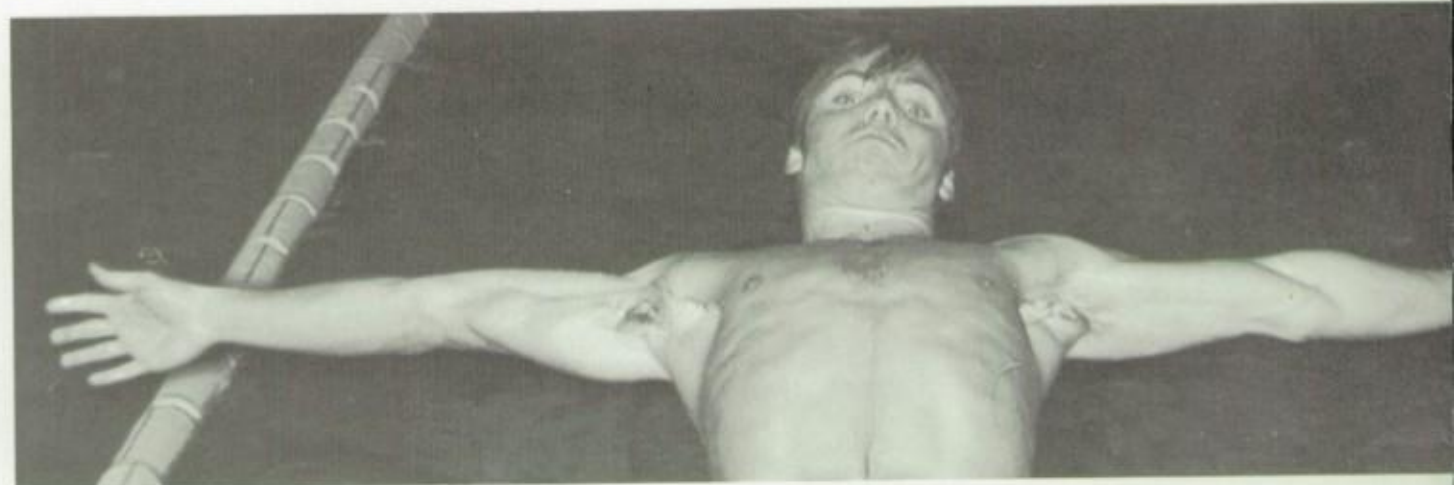

Besides the relays five individuals also were eligible for the state meet. These were Kent Berryman (50 free, 200 IM, 100 fly, 100 back, and 100 free), John McInturff (200 and 400 free), Rick Seaberg (100 breast), Jim Seaberg (100 back), and Bill Schneebeli (diving).

Win over Glacier brightens title hopes

With the basketball season nearing the halfway point, a down-and-out Ram team suddenly found a new lease on life with a comeback, 56-50 win over previously unbeaten Glacier. Down by 16 points in the third quarter, a Ram blitz overwhelmed the Grizzlies into submission and enabled Mt. Rainier to rest in first place after the first round of NPSL play.

The Glacier game was not the only high point of the early season, however. An old nemesis, Renton, fell to Mt. Rainier for the first time in five years. Traveling to Kennedy during the Christmas holidays, the Rams swept host Kennedy and Highline off the court to win the first annual Christmas Holiday Tournament.

Winningest basketball season ever gives Mt. Rainier its first winter championship

Overcoming all predictions by Seattle newspapers, the Mt. Rainier Rams slammed preseason picks Glacier and Renton out of contention and established themselves as basketball kingpins of the North Puget Sound League for 1970-71.

Before a packed throng of over 3000 wailing spectators, the Rams made lightning strike twice, pulling out a 57-51 win over Glacier in the heat and confusion of a packed Kennedy gym. The score was almost identical to the first Rainier-Glacier game, but the result was quite different—the Grizzlies were out for good.

The win over Glacier was also significant in that it broke the school record of 13 wins in a season, set by Rams teams in 1965-66 and 1969-70. Dave Lutes, three-year starter, moved into second place in Ram career scoring at the Grizzlies' expense.

Dana Arnold, who also finished in the school's Top Ten, shattered the old season field goal mark. Scott Thompson, undoubtedly the league's most improved player, led the conference in points and free throws. His 21 points against Hazen enabled him to become the first Ram ever to make 300 points in one season, including over 100 free throws.

Underclassmen provide varsity future

In order to gain valuable playing skills and experience, Junior Varsity and Sophomore teams played regular NPSL schedules and were treated with the utmost of care by their respective coaches.

Al Ledford, beginning his second term as Junior Varsity coach, stressed team discipline and experience by employing a two platoon system which paid off in winning the J.V. division of the Kennedy Holiday Tournament.

One of the most successful Sophomore coaches in the NPSL, Doug Ringenbach, with a 28-4 record entering the 1970-71 season, again found himself at the helm of a winning ball club. With a loss to Kentridge the only blot on their record, the Sophomores sat in first place after the first round of play.

Hill's harriers make cakewalk of NPSL

In an era of high school sports where it is the accepted opinion that it takes a so-called superstar to build a championship machine, Mt. Rainier's cross country team became a stickler to the theory.

Donning the NPSL crown, Coach Bill Hill and his well-oiled machine depended upon a solid effort from every cog to keep themselves rolling, and that they got. Led by three-year letterman Daryl Watson, the Rams' ability to pull out victories when the competition was seemingly over their heads was a credit to the finest team spirit that Coach Hill had ever witnessed. The courageous harriers stumbled but once in its dual-meet season—to rival Highline—but they posted the school's first cross country win over Renton. Going on to tie the Pirates in the duals, they took it all when it counted in the NPSL Sub-District Meet, avenging the earlier setback to Highline and whipping Renton once again.

In District, the biggest enemy of athletics, injury, threw a wrench into the Ram machine and held them back from their second consecutive appearance in State.

Winning streak continues

Going from the height of victory to the depth of defeat, Mt. Rainier fans were treated to a wide open offense as well as an explosive defense. Expecting to whittle the Totems, the Rams encountered their biggest heart-breaker when Tyee, who lagged behind the entire first half, unexpectedly upset M.R. gridders 24-14.

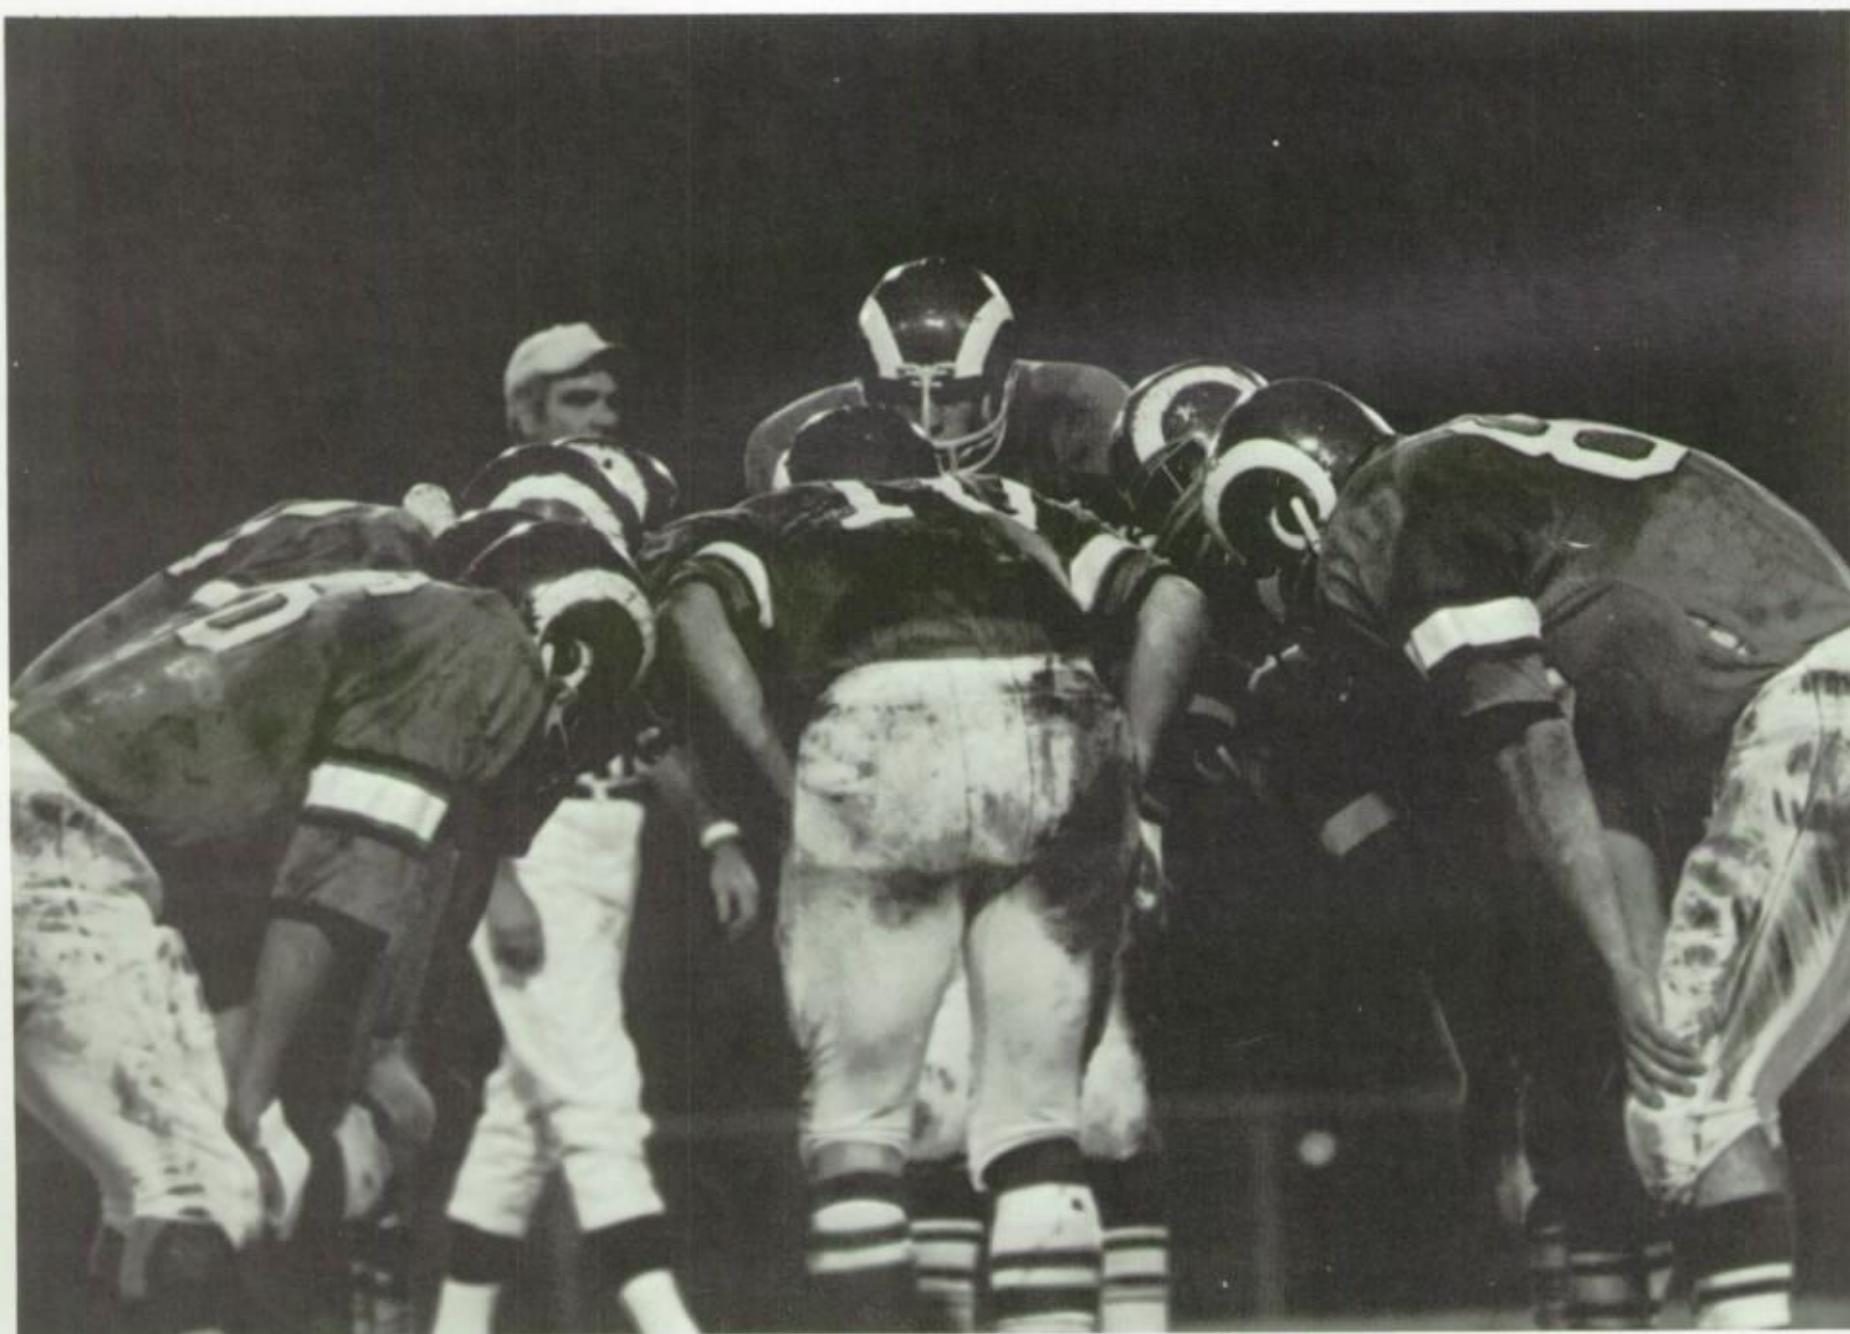

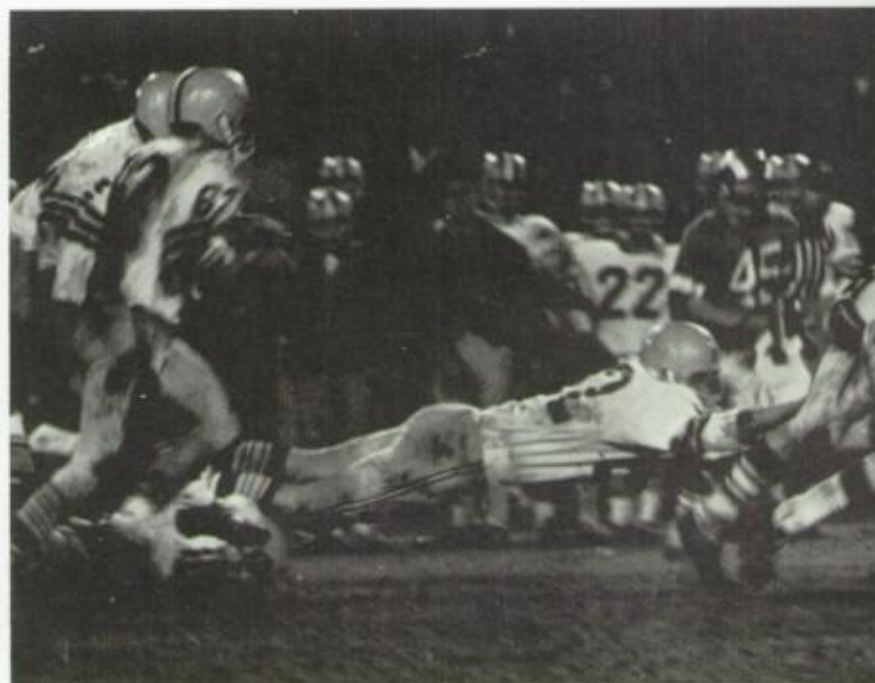

The Ram statistic book showed the highest winning score even after the 37-0 Highline game where the Pirates committed turnover after turnover! Although rather small and unexperienced, the Rams posted the third straight winning season, as well as the third best win-loss record in the school's history.

One of the building blocks of football at Mt. Rainier was the Sophomore program. Often over looked, it was a very important part of the overall program. They played a durable schedule along with other North Puget Sound League schools.

Coached by Jerry Dotson and Jim Kennett the sophomores won all six of their games along with the championship. More important though was the winning tradition and pattern set down for the future.

Underclassmen make backbone for golf

Though hurt by lack of experience our "Ram Swingers" were strong contenders in every golf match. Twelve of the top sixteen members were either juniors or sophomores.

Highlighting the season were close victories over perennial powers, Renton and Kent Meridian. The overall record for the golf season was three wins and five losses, good enough for sixth place in a strong North Puget Sound League.

The leading medalist, Nik Quesnell, set a school record in shooting a three under par thirty-four for nine holes at the Rams home course, Tyee Valley Golf Club.

Mermaids make waves

The fall sports season brought a new activity to Mt. Rainier girls. The girls swim team started out small and untrained but by the end of the season they were the most improved swim team in the district.

Coach Dick Swanson was an inspiration to the girls, encouraging them through the rough waters and on to victory over Thomas Jefferson. Due to their willingness to work and natural abilities the swim team as a whole achieved success. Several girls went on to qualify for state competition.

Early birds get senior breakfast

December 23, 1970, found the senior class in the cafeteria at 6:30 in the morning. What activity could possibly attract such a large crowd at that time? The DE class would answer, "The Annual Senior Breakfast." A delicious meal was served. The early bird seniors were entertained by the Lee a'lyn Quartet, Mr. Bill Hill, the Rainaires, Senior Popularity Poll, Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus, Mr. Mike Fuller's skit and the faculty's "Funny Thing Happened on the Way to Graduation".

The Senior Popularity Poll was the highlight of the morning. The results were:

Empathy projected in “Charlie”

Proclaiming that high school students could do anything, Mr. Fuller chose “Flowers for Algernon” as the Senior Class Play. Much of his time as a director was spent among the cast members teaching them how to involve their audience in the production. Sensitivity training was used to create in the actors an acute awareness of their environment. The play was consequently performed with extreme delicacy and had a very moving effect on the audience.

The lead roles of Charly and Alice Kinian were played by Jim Passmore and Robin Hensel. Both roles required extreme concentration and total involvement. The plot of the play concerned the development of a retarded man into a genius as a result of an operation. He then regressed to his former state of intelligence.

Five hundred and thirty-nine seniors began calling Mt. Rainier "My old Alma Mater" on June 10th. Now the largest class to graduate, the seniors chose emerald green and royal blue as the colors they wanted to decorate their activities, while "Like a Bridge Over Troubled Water" was played as their song. Dissent broke out in the middle of the year as to whether they would wear caps and gowns, but, once again, tradition reigned.

RIGHT: Student listens for last-minute line-up instructions.

It took us a long time to get here . . .

*Always dream and shoot higher than you know you can do.
Don't bother just to be better than your contemporaries or predecessors.
Try to be better than yourself.*

We got it all together

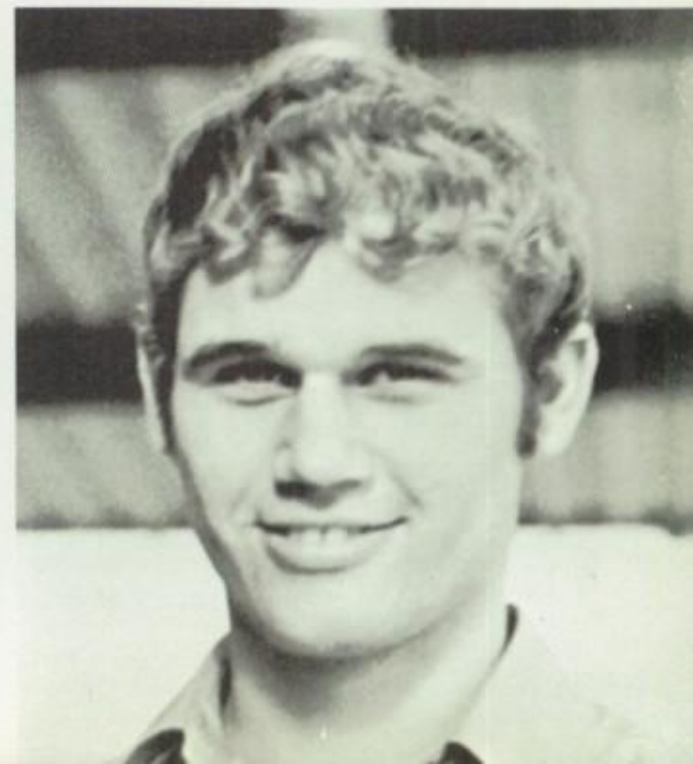

We would like to express our sincere thanks to Mrs. D'Ann Pedee, who will this year retire from being Mt. Rainier's Yearbook adviser. Few people realize the time and effort put into an annual; getting pictures taken by a fine photography firm, Kennell-Ellis Studios, and being informed by Mr. Jim Palm (American Yearbook Company) were two definite factors needed to produce your 'TOR' on time.

With this in mind, and with Coach Pedee's help, we did "Get it Together". Most of the people in our class were not in for an easy 'A', but wanted to make TOR a better book. That's really something, isn't it?
